

Sailing school on Lake Thun, Switzerland.

Behind the sails rise the peaks of the Stockhorn range.

The Niesen towers over yachts on Lake Thun.

With your eyes beguiled by towering, snow-capped Alpine peaks, on a lake in the center of a country with no coastline, even if you had never handled a boat before, if you followed a three-week program diligently you could obtain your yachtsman's certificate—issued by the Canton of Berne, Switzerland.

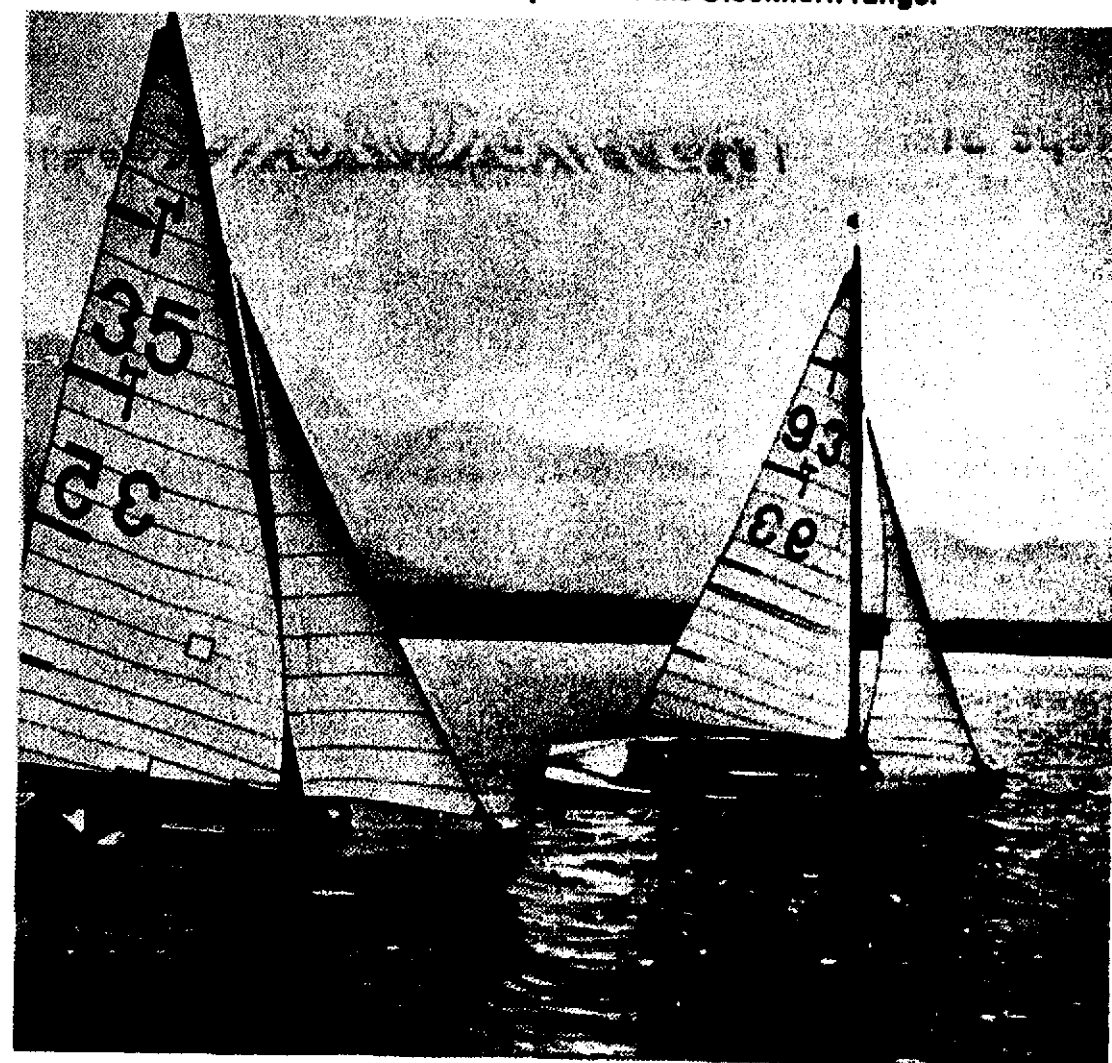

At the Lake Thun Sailing School, in the Swiss Alps, you could also spend a few days just "messing about in boats," without bothering about examinations. The school has 20 yachts and dinghies at Hilterfingen, Spiez and Neuhaus, round the lake, and visitors are welcome whether they want to get a proficiency certificate or not.

Several hundred pupils are trained at the school each year. And some become so skillful that they go on to reach regatta standard. The teaching program is designed to lead to proficiency in controlling a craft single handed. It is based on five-day (or ten-half day) courses covering different aspects of sailing, both theoretical and practical.

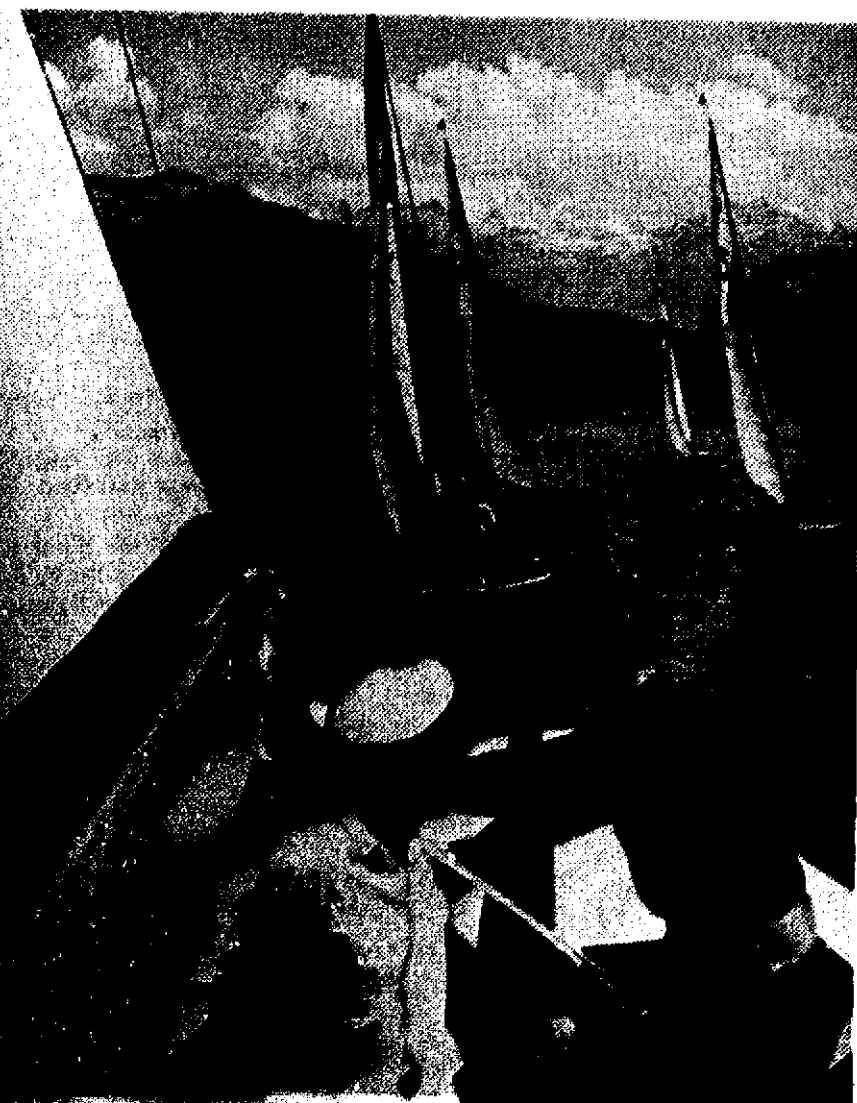

Unless you could prove prior knowledge and experience, you would have to do at least three five-day courses to take your mate's or helmsman's examination. This leads to the yachtsman's certificate and you could then go on to the master's examination.

The waters are blue, the air is fresh. And even if you came on vacation feeling as if you needed a rest cure, after a few days you'll probably find yourself suntanned and active, crewing, tacking, wearing, beating and jibing with the best of them.

appearing on everybody else's television show. I figured it was time I got them to return the favor."

"And they all came through. Bob Hope—he does a monologue of entertaining the troops at Valley Forge that is hilarious. Dan Rowan and Dick Martin—they oughta be grateful, 'cause I was one of the first stars to do those gags on 'Laugh-In' and I paved the way for others."

"Glen Campbell—he's my kids' favorite. Red Skelton, Jack Benny, Raquel Welch, Lucille Ball—they're all returning the favor."

The man behind "Swing Out, Sweet Land" is producer Paul Keyes, in whom Wayne has complete confidence—"After all, he put Jack Paar on the map, set up Dean Martin on television, and was the important factor in the beginning of 'Laugh-In.'"

"Everybody thinks this is going to be a big flag-waving show because John Wayne is the star," said Keyes. "But people will find out that it's going to be fun. Wait till they see Phyllis Diller as the first female candidate for president, or Lucille Ball as the Statue of Liberty, or Rowan and Martin as the Wright Brothers, or Dean Martin as Eli Whitney."

Wayne seemed pleased that the message will be sugar-coated, but the message will be there, nevertheless.

"I'm doing this show for my kids," he remarked. "Before I got too old, I wanted to do something on television that would give them an idea about how their country developed—even if it is played largely for laughs."

The result, he said, will be the most expensive show in television history — "It'll cost Budweiser about two million, before time charges. But hell, if I can give 'em an audience of 50 million, that's not such a bad buy."

Knitwear turns up in all the new trends for fall. Red with bold blue and yellow horizontal-striped gaucho skirt in the midi length (left) plays a feature role on the fall scene. The high-rise waist is belted with a blue suede sash. Leopard leaps into fall (center) in a hooded jacket and matching pantsuit. The outfit captures the feline feeling in all-nylon leopard print. The hood-hugger can be worn up or in a languid cowl. The full flavor of country is captured with the charming poncho and gaucho pants outfit (right), both with self-fringe in shades of yellow, green and beige. Also part of the group is a matching midskirt which converts to a mini by snapping off the lower panel. These are Darlene Knitwear designs.

Mary Tyler Moore Back on TV

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Mary Tyler Moore is back on television and the wise guys are saying, "See, she couldn't make it in the movies, so she had to do another TV series."

Her movie career was no great shakes. It started out well with "Thoroughly Modern Millie," but after that it was all downhill. She was in a bunch of pictures which were, well, "unsuccessful" is a nice way of putting it.

"But even if my movie career had gone better," says Mary, "I absolutely would not have stuck with it."

"I dislike the jigsaw aspect of movies, where you shoot scenes in the order the accountant tells you. The only kind of TV I would do was one like this, where you shoot it in sequence in front of a live audience."

So she let it be known that she was receptive to TV offers and a tidal wave flooded in.

The problem she faced was what kind of woman she wanted to play.

"I didn't want to be married—the public wouldn't accept me as married to anybody except Dick Van Dyke. I didn't want to be divorced—the network said this was not the time to kid about divorce. I didn't want to be a widow with two kids—there are too many of them on the screen already."

"By a process of elimination, that left only one category—a single girl. A single girl who is looking for a man."

So in her new CBS show, imaginatively called The Mary Tyler Moore Show, she will play a single girl looking for a man. To finance her search, she works in a television newsroom.

If it seems difficult to accept the fact that a girl as Mary-Tyler-Moore-looking as Mary Tyler Moore hasn't got a man, well, this is TV and it's just another impossibility come true.

Lots of good people turned up at Hollywood Bowl for Rod McKuen's concert appearance, backed by a near-symphony-sized orchestra. It was all a bit pretentious: The sight of Rod, in sneakers, conducting the 41-piece orchestra will live with me for many years. But he is one of our most gifted songwriters and nobody can sing his own songs as well as he can. Rock Hudson, Agnes Moorehead, Sue Lyon, Cesar Romero and many more came, had a picnic supper in the sunset and stayed to the end.

One of the best movie books in years is John Springer's "The Fondas," in which he looks at Henry, Jane and Peter and their films. Since Springer has long been Henry Fonda's press agent, he knows his subject intimately and that makes the volume very valuable—and good fun, too.

Another impressive event on the Hollywood social calendar was the party Bell Records tossed to introduce a recording allegedly made

WELFARE FAMILIES HAVE PRIDE

Dear Helen:

The person who wrote about "the population bomb" seemed to imply that "low class" families are basically stupid and if they kept on having babies while "high class" people limited themselves to one or two per couple, soon we'd have a nation of boobs.

While I agree that all families should be limited, I resent the attitude that welfare people are morons. My mother is on welfare because she can't work and raise her children right, all alone. We know a lot of people who have to take welfare right now because there just aren't any jobs. They're intelligent and proud, believe it or not. Some of them aren't very well educated because they didn't have much chance, but their kids will be.

I read that if "population zero" were practiced by all the upper and middle class people, while the "poor people" kept on propagating as usual, in ten generations, our national average IQ would only be lowered by about two points. There isn't that much difference in people, if they're given enough space and enough chance to develop their potential. —A.D.C.

Dear A:

You are so right. Thanks for your good letter. —H.

Dear Helen:

I certainly agree with that gal who complained about "dirty old men," of 30 or 35. A boy your own age can make remarks that are fun and you don't take them wrong, but when these older guys try to be cute with teen-age girls, it really turns us off.

Like I was signing up for a course at school, and someone said "Please fill out your form," and a teacher who was old enough to know better remarked, looking me up and down, "She already has!" Yeech!

Maybe if enough girls write and complain, the DOM will get the message and stay in their own generation. —LYL (LITTLE YOUNG LADY)

Dear LYL:

Note to all DOM — stay with the LOLs and leave the LYLs alone! —H.

Dear Helen:

If you can't sign a legal paper until you are 21, how come in most states, a girl can get married without her parents' permission when she is 18? Isn't that signing a legal paper? —ALWAYS THINKING

Dear A. T.:

Confusin' isn't it? And another argument for the total legal adult status to be set at age 19 or 20. —H.

Dear Helen:

I'm 15 and in love with my girl friend's father who is 39. I'm sure he loves me too, but he won't leave his wife, even though he doesn't like her.

I might persuade him into divorcing her and marrying me, but then I'd be my girl friend's "mother" and she is six months younger than I am.

What should I do? —IN LOVE

Dear In:

Stop dreaming! Or should I say fantasizing? You're no more in love with this man than you were with that junior high

If you think that North and South got a little high when they bid six hearts with 12 high-card points opposite 10 and a broken trump suit we will agree with you and put down the overbidding to exuberance of youth.

The year was 1935. Both players were just 18 years old and appearing in their first tournament.

North was Robert MacPherran who won several national titles including the Vanderbilt in the ensuing years and South was John Crawford whose record of tournament wins is second only to Oswald Jacoby's.

Johnny sat South and was faced with the problem of getting 12 tricks. He had to ruff at least two diamonds in dummy and therefore it was necessary for him to assume a 2-2 trump break. Furthermore if he ruffed only two diamonds he would need a 3-3 club break to give him a parking place for his last diamond.

He won the club lead in dummy and noted East's play of the five. Where was the deuce? Either East was echoing or West had it. Johnny decided that clubs were not going to break so he decided to go after three diamond ruffs.

Once he had made that decision the play proceeded rapidly. He played a trump to his ace and noticed both opponents followed. He then played the ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond in dummy. Cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. Ruffed another diamond and another spade and finally the last diamond.

Now he had to get back to his hand and decided to do so with a club to the ace. He then led a small trump and claimed the rest of the tricks when that low trump dropped the king and queen.

The pearl, often a gem of great value, is not a precious stone.

By ROGER DOUGHTY

-WHAT'S NEW?—Believe in ESP and all that kind of stuff? Sounds as if John Hartford does. The lanky banjo-picker told Youth Beat, "I believe that everything that happens has happened before. That's why I don't really think I've ever written a song—the song was there all along. I just rediscovered it and brought it into the present time." Don't know whose songs John is rediscovering from their ancient past, but if he comes up with a few more like "Gentle On My Mind," his future (or past, as the case may be) is assured.

John has a syndicated TV show called Something Else that will be popping up all over the country (in 80 cities or so) and it's well worth looking for.

DOG DAYS—Laurie Anne Reustle of Vallejo, Calif., writes that the way to get rich during the summer (she did it this year) is to dogst. She did it for a couple of German shorthairs named Butch and Tina and picked up $1.50 an hour. "I'm delighted with the job," says Laurie. "There are no diapers to change, no runny noses to wipe, no kids crying for their mama and no wrestling with children to get them to bed." Sounds as if the pooch-pampering business has its good points.

CLIP, CLIP—What with barbers pulling their own hair out because of the long hair thing, word comes from the West Coast that Teen Magazine has come up with something called the She 'N' He Hairstyling Competition.

Seems that 35 per cent of the magazine's female fans trim their boyfriends' hair, which gave somebody the idea to have a contest in Los Angeles with 23 gals competing in a 45-minute hairstyling derby to see who did the best job. Sandy Steele of Santa Monica and Robbie Anderson of Beverly Hills were the winners, sticking up a trip to Hawaii. Next year, we are warned, we'll see contests like this all over the country. Maybe you can wait that long before getting another clip job.

STRAWBERRY STUFF—The most peaceful festival of the season, the Strawberry Fields outing in Canada, was billed in that country as a motorcycle race with entertainment. Seems it was much easier to put the thing on that way since billing anything as a festival proved to be bad news. Anyway, it worked, which is all that counts. Maybe that's the way to play it from now on.

STILL KICKING—The new Alive 'N' Kickin' single we listed about last week (it was supposed to be secret stuff at the time), is now officially O.K. to talk about. It's called "Just Let It Come" and it's gonna be a real goody. Can't tell you about the flip side because the review copy we heard had the same tune on both sides.

Mary Tyler Moore back in TV fold

by The Partridge Family. Shirley Jones and her stepson, David Cassidy, are the only ones of the group—created for ABC's new series of the same name—who can really sing.

The other four children are just four children. Shirley said other voices are dubbed in for those four.

It makes it look a bit odd. In the show, the six open their mouths in song and out comes something that sounds like a syncopated Robert Shaw Chorale.

Yankees 84 Victories Not Enough

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The three best records in baseball belong, logically enough, to the Cincinnati Reds, who've clinched the National League West division race; the Baltimore Orioles, champions in the American League East, and the Minnesota Twins, who are closing in on the AL West crown.

The fourth best record in baseball belongs, rather illogically, to the New York Yankees, who are 13½ games behind Baltimore and, of course, have been eliminated from any race this season.

The Yankees, who have the poor luck to be playing in the right division but the wrong league, won their 84th game of the season Friday night, blanking Detroit 5-0 on Ron Klimkowski's three-hitter. If they were in the National League East instead of American League East, their record would be good enough not only for first place but for a four-game lead as well.

The 84 victories are the most the Yankees have won since 1964 when they captured the pennant with 99 victories.

Bobcats Take Sheridan in 28-0 Victory

By BILL MOORE
Star Sports Writer

As the little red cannon roared, the Bobcats scored. Four times it roared and four times they scored, the fifth roar meaning victory for the 1969 AAA champion Hope Bobcats, title contenders once again.

Dominating statistics, spirit, and ball control the Bobcats rolled over the Sheridan Yellowjackets, 28-0, for their 2nd win against one loss. If you ask me, the opinion is that the Jackets were the ones' stung and it was pretty obvious looking at the action from the stands.

The next game is at Fairview, against the Cardinals, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in a rough conference game.

For the first eight minutes, both teams, traded possession before the Bobcats had control of the ball at midfield. With 4:30 left in the first quarter, Hope started a drive with Gary Don Jones and Gary Wheelington grounding out yardage to the Sheridan 18 yard line.

With 2:19 to go, quarterback Ronnie Massanelli passed 18 yards to Rusty Quillin for the first Hope score, and after Tim White booted the extra point through the uprights, the Cats had a 7-0 lead.

Kicking off to Sheridan the Bobcats held and four plays later had the ball again, this time on their own 25 yard stripe. Getting up to the 38, a penalty set the Cats back to the 27, but that didn't stop them.

After Sheridan called time out with 10:52 left in the half, Hope once again cranked up the offensive machine and relying on the running of Jones and Roger Newton, pushed their way to the Jack 45.

From this point on a 3rd and four situation, Massanelli found split end Buddy Ingram behind everyone, and connected for a 45 yard TD bomb with 2:19 left in the half, for Hope's second score. The PAT was no good, but at half, the Bobcats led 13-0.

It looked pretty good from the midway point and Hope came out ready to play more.

There was no real action in the third quarter, scoring wise, but then came the fourth.

Running behind a beautiful wall of blocks, Ray Wheelington tallied the third score, returning a punt 75 yards with only 5:32 left in the game. Massanelli then ran around right end for a two point conversion and the Bobcats were riding a 21-0 lead with only a few minutes left.

Sheridan took the kickoff and moved in a reverse direction, giving up the ball on their own 15 after failing to get a first down.

Hope reserves began coming in and they too looked good.

After getting seven yards on three carries, Hope passed and an interference call gave them a 1 and 10 on the five yard line.

At this point quarterback Tommy Frazier rolled left, found Ricky Hart, and threw a perfect strike for the last score with 1:33 left, and after White kicked the extra point, Hope had a very impressive 28-0 victory over Sheridan.

Sheridan's two closet offensive drives were to the Hope 10 and 15 yard lines, but interceptions by Calvin Willis and Rusty Quillin spoiled both threats. Lynn Norton also recovered a fumble.

The defense was credited with an outstanding job, pressuring Sheridan all through the game and throwing the Jacket runners for several losses.

Now to Fairview next week.

THE CRISES IN HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS:

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Although financial problems have had a discouraging effect on high school sports in America, the problem of student violence is threatening to dwarf it in concern among high school administrators. Already, unruliness at games has forced high schools to make major adjustments in their programs, from playing in empty gyms on Thursday afternoons to doubling police protection at stadia on Friday nights.

The following incidents were reported in answer to a survey conducted by NEA, by administrators of high school sports in states that have had increases of student violence and consider it their No. 1 problem:

• Rhode Island—The state basketball tournament championship game was interrupted by a student assault on an usher at Providence College, where the tournament was held. The game was concluded, but students at Providence College have filed a formal protest to their administrators in hopes of preventing future state tournaments from being held on their campus. The final game of the state hockey tournament was never completed because of a free-for-all on the ice. It was between

• Delaware — DeLaWarr High School of Wilmington was not permitted to play before spectators for its last three basketball games last season. The ruling was made by the Blue Hen Conference of which it is a member. The action was taken after a free-for-all involving players and spectators at a previous game in the DeLaWarr gym. The team, however, went on to win the state championship.

• North Carolina—During a game between Rosewood and Princeton High Schools, the following incidents occurred: Two fights broke out among players and spectators, six students were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct, and were found guilty; one student was arrested on charges of carrying a loaded weapon (pistol) and public intoxication, and found guilty on both; and the game was called at halftime.

The latter state, in particular, has had a noticeable increase in violence at games. Said Simon Terrell, executive secretary of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association:

"Many schools have been integrated down here and in most cases the facilities are not large enough to handle all the students. Not only are the buildings too small, but so are the athletic fields and the gyms. Seating capacity at games is inadequate and the only solution is new facilities.

"As far as the violence goes, I think it can be broken down into two segments: First, there are students who come to games with no other purpose than to cause trouble and, second, there are instigators coming around high schools from colleges and putting ideas into the kids' heads."

In Detroit and Chicago, football games have been played on Thursday afternoons and basketball games on Friday afternoons before students-only audiences for many years. In Albany, N.Y., two years ago, a basketball game was cancelled in the first period when spectators ran onto the floor and attacked players. It was replayed three days later in the afternoon — without anyone knowing it, not even the students who were passing between classes.

Even the more rural states, such as Oklahoma, have had their share of violence. Said Leo Higby of the Oklahoma Secondary School Activities Association: "We've had our share of problems, especially during basketball season. But so far, it has been limited to two metropolitan areas—Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

The only state that reported no problems with the conduct of its students was Hawaii. Said Tom Kiyasaki, executive secretary of the Hawaii High School Athletic Association:

"So far, things out here are still dreamy."

High school sports in this country — as we have known them for the last two decades, at least — are in considerable trouble. A survey conducted by Newspaper Enterprise Association, of high school sports in each of the 50 states, revealed that two major problems are plaguing high school sports programs from Maine to California. They are:

1. Voter rejection of school board budgets, resulting in the cutback and, in some cases, the abolition of high school sports programs.

2. Student violence at sports events which, in at least two states, became uncontrollable last year.

The budget problems are not new but, like the student violence, they have increased in almost every state in the last five years. Less money is being allotted to interscholastic sports programs and, as a result, freshman and junior varsity teams have been eliminated in some states, coaching staffs have been reduced in others, and the number of games trimmed in still others.

In almost every state, high

schools are either reducing their sports programs or struggling to hold onto what they already have. Major expansion of programs or facilities was not projected by a single state, nor were increased expenditures on such things as uniforms, traveling, coaches' salaries or equipment.

In some cities — such as Portland, Ore., Vestal, N.Y., Bay City, Mich., Westerly, R.I., and Chardon, Ohio — the sports programs at high schools were abolished because of budget cutbacks. Adult groups subsequently formed in all but Chardon and raised the money to finance the interscholastic sports programs themselves. Chardon High School, for the 1970-71 school year, is without sports.

The Portland problem arose in late June of 1966 when the taxpayers voted down for the third time their school board's proposed budget. One of the first expenditures to go was the $450,000 allotted annually to interscholastic sports at the city's 13 public high schools.

But, in a period of six weeks, a volunteer group headed by Paul McCall, an athletic director at one of the high schools, raised $200,000 and succeeded in underwriting the sports programs at each of the schools during that academic year.

"It was," said McCall, "an unforgettable display of teamwork. High school students went house-to-house, ringing doorbells, asking for donations. Two of the city's banks contributed $2,500 each, parents held rummage sales, sold candy bars, washed cars. Even the coaches helped out by taking $100 pay cuts. By the middle of August we had enough money to restore sports at every school—frills excluded, of course. There were no new uniforms that year."

In Vestal, a city of 26,000 near Binghamton with only one high school, $50,000 was raised in 1968 by a similar group to finance not only the sports program but also the cheerleaders, the marching band, and bus transportation to and from games for everybody. That group was headed by a data processing consultant named Ray Meyers and consisted primarily of members of the Dad's Booster Club.

"The first thing we did," said Meyers, "was open a snack stand near the high school. Since the cafeteria program was wiped out, too, the kids had no place to eat lunch. So we killed two birds with one stone on that deal. We put canisters inside every business in the city, sent the cheerleaders out to canvas homes, and hit the parents of every athlete up for $10 each. We also solicited the professional people in town by letter — doctors, lawyers and such — and they came through very well for us."

Budget problems, too, the survey indicates, have not been sectional nor have they been restricted to less affluent communities. New Mexico and Arkansas, for example, have been troubled by them as much as New York and Pennsylvania, and the city of Los Angeles, with 43 public high schools, was on the verge of losing sports the same time last spring that Chardon, with one, did.

"I'd say almost every high school district in the country is sweating over this problem," said Bill Russell, commissioner of the California Interscholastic Federation, governing body of the state's 853 public high schools.

"Let's face it, America is being taxed to death, and money's tight. People want some relief from the tax load and, unfortunately for us, the best way to get immediate results is to vote down a school budget. The next time it comes up, they know it's going to be smaller."

"As for sports in high schools, I think more and more people are viewing them, from a dollars and cents standpoint, as an extravagance."

One State's Violence Problems

The following incidents occurred during the past year at scholastic sports events in the state of North Carolina.

1. Cherokee-Swain County Football Game—After the game a Swain player was struck by a Cherokee player. Also, another Swain player was struck by a Cherokee spectator and cut on his wrist and stomach. The Smoky Mountain Conference took the following action: Cherokee was placed on probation for one year in all sports. Prosecution of the adult who did the cutting. The Cherokee player who struck the Swain player was to be immediately suspended from the team if he were involved in any similar incident. Cherokee was to furnish complete police protection to all teams and officials from the dressing room to the field.

2. Edneyville High School—Following the Edneyville-T. C. Roberson basketball game the Edneyville coach approached the officials in an unsportsmanlike manner and used profanity. He then went into the officials' dressing room and continued to voice his disapproval. Adult Edneyville spectators had to be restrained by a deputy sheriff when they approached the officials. Also, an Edneyville player threatened the T. C. Roberson coach with a chair. The Edneyville coach was fined $100 and placed on probation for the remainder of the school year. Any remaining Edneyville home basketball games were to be played in the afternoon before only the present student body and faculty members. The Edneyville player was suspended through January.

3. Harris High School—After their game with Owen high school, a Harris high school spectator struck an official. A warrant was issued charging the spectator with assault. The court found him guilty and fined him. The school banned him from all athletic events held at their school for the remainder of the season. Harris high school was placed on spectator probation for the remainder of the football season.

4. North Buncombe High School—After the last play of the game the North Buncombe spectators came on the field and attacked the Tusculo players. As a result of this unsportsmanlike conduct the following action was taken: 1. North Buncombe high school was fined $100. 2. Their play-off game with East Surry was moved to a neutral site and any other play-off games in which North Buncombe were involved would be played on the opponent's home field. 3. North Buncombe was placed on probation for two years.

5. Chapel Hill High School—Northern Durham High School J.V. and Varsity Games—As the game ended, fights broke out between the two teams. As the Northern players were leaving the field, the Chapel Hill players chased them through the gate and fights broke out again. In the varsity game between Chapel Hill and Northern on Friday of the same week, a group of Chapel Hill spectators left their side of the field and came to the Northern side. The principals and coaches of Chapel Hill and Northern made the following decisions: 1) Chapel Hill canceled its remaining J.V. football schedule. 2) Football games between the two schools will be played at a neutral site next season. 3) Basketball games between the two schools will be played in the afternoon at 4:30 with no spectators.

6. Jasper High School—Topsall High School—In the last minute of the game a fight broke out between the players and then the spectators joined in. The game was called.

7. Magnolia High School—Hope Mills High School—At the conclusion of a basketball game between Magnolia and Hope Mills, a Magnolia player struck a Hope Mills player in the head. The Hope Mills player had cursed the Magnolia player during the game. The Hope Mills player was suspended for the next two games. The Magnolia player was suspended through the month of December and was put on probation for the remainder of the season. The team and school were placed on probation.

8. Eastern Randolph High School—The coach from Eastern Randolph was unsportsmanlike in his conduct during the Eastern Randolph-Mt. Airy basketball game. He was placed on probation for the season.

9. Princeton High School—The officials were cursed and pushed on the way to the dressing room by Princeton spectators after the basketball game with South Edgemont at Princeton. The Princeton principal took adequate action in trying to prevent similar incidents from occurring. Princeton was placed on spectator probation.

Boeing 727 is Hijacked to Havana

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A young man who said he carried an explosive hijacked a Boeing 727 to Cuba Saturday shortly after the plane landed at Philadelphia International Airport.

Allegheny Airlines said the Pittsburgh-to-Boston flight took off for Havana with a three-man crew and four stewardesses at 1:50 a.m. after the passengers had been let off. The plane was refueled at Philadelphia.

John Balderama, a passenger, said the man "grabbed one of the stewardesses by the neck and took her to the front of the plane" just before it landed at Philadelphia for a scheduled stop.

The airline said the man told them he was carrying an explosive and a pistol and threatened to blow up the plane unless he was taken to Havana. Police said the man carried a .22-caliber pistol and a Molotov cocktail.

U.S. Juggling Blamed for Money Freeze

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ward Goodman, state highway director, blamed federal juggling for confusion about the amount of money Arkansas has received in federal highway aid.

The reshuffling of plans and policies in the executive branch of the federal government has created difficulties for the state Highway Department, too, he said.

Goodman made his remarks to a meeting of the Legislative Council and explained the federal highway aid situation as it pertains to Arkansas.

Arkansas congressmen, he pointed out, are practically helpless to do anything directly to loosen the tight money policies that have resulted in a "freeze" by the federal government on some highway construction appropriations.

In his presentation, Goodman said that Congress had authorized a national expenditure of $5.47 billion for federal highway aid in this fiscal year. Congress later appropriated the same amount in the Department of Transportation bill, he said.

From that point on, however, Congress has had no control over the highway aid program, Goodman said.

Arkansas' share of the grand total was set at $42.9 million, Goodman said.

Before Arkansas can spend its $42.9 million, the state must be given "reimbursable obligation authority" by the Department of Transportation, Goodman said.

The "freeze" was put into effect, however, and the national transportation department has granted the authority to Arkansas for only $32.1 million, the director told the council.

He said the situation had proved embarrassing in some cases to congressmen. He related that Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., had announced that $600,000 would be spent for improvements on Arkansas 5, but that the money could not be spent since the sum was part of the amount for which spending authority had not yet been granted.

Furthermore, Goodman said, the $32.1 million is not allocated by the Department of Transportation in a single lump, but has been split into four equal amounts for quarterly distribution.

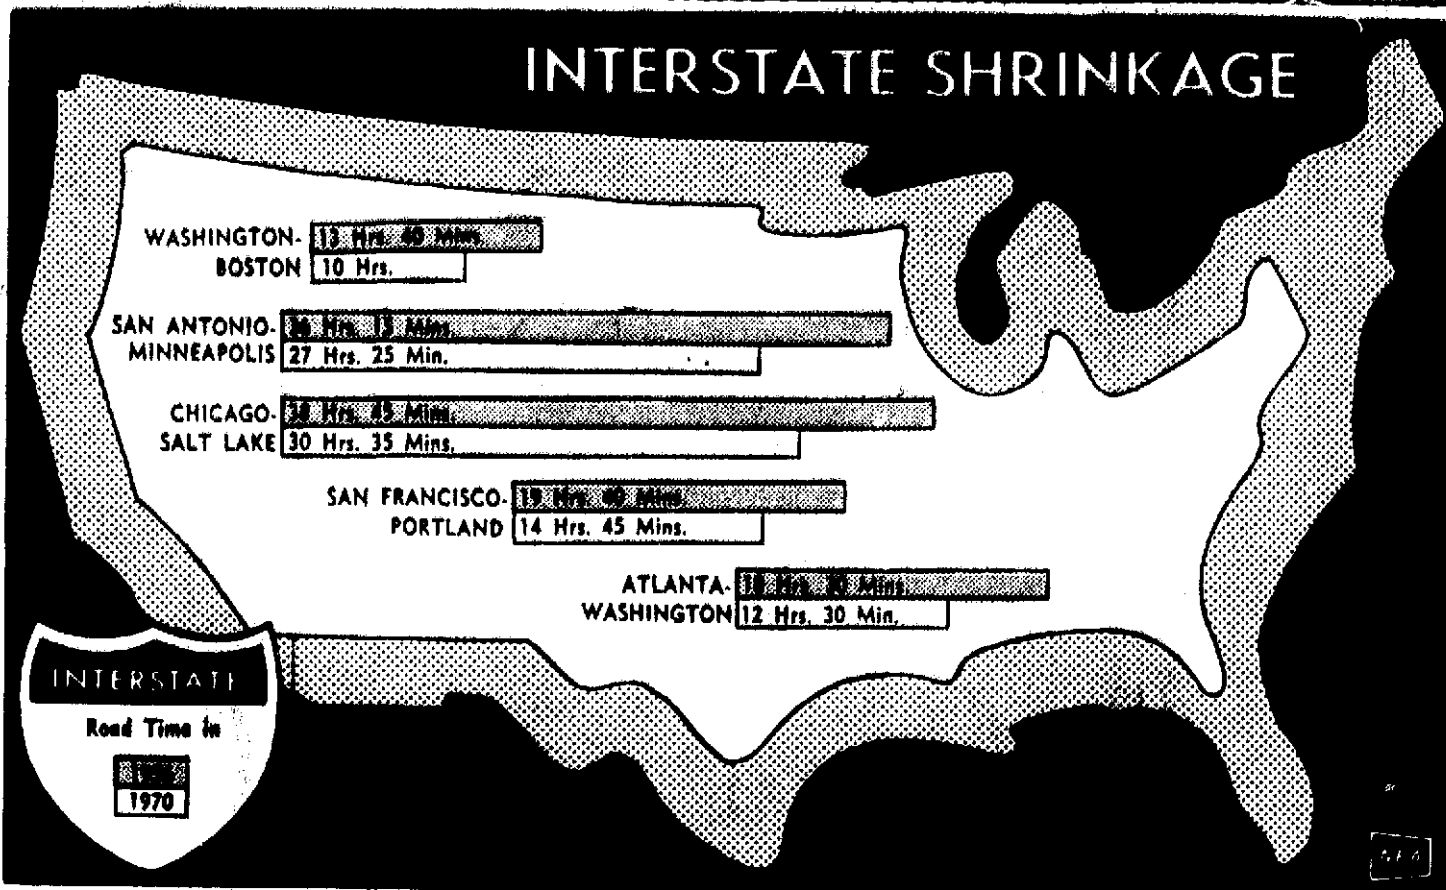

The result is that the state has received only about $8 million from the federal government thus far in new highway construction aid.

Goodman said Arkansas has on hand enough money to match every federal highway aid dollar if the entire $42.9 million were to be made available at once.

Broadcaster Caught Unaware

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Gabriel Heatter's 61st birthday Thursday caught him unawares, his daughter, Maide said.

But the nationally famous news broadcaster of former years testily ate a piece of the birthday cake served at his home.

The Interstate Highway System, now about 70 per cent completed, has had the effect of "shrinking" the United States, at least in terms of travel time. The Federal Highway Administration has calculated an average 10 per cent cut between major cities. Average speed in the main traffic corridors has increased from 36 m.p.h. in 1956 to 46 m.p.h. today. When the system is completed, the average is expected to rise to between 50 and 60 m.p.h.

Armed Whites Stopped March at Earle

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Mayor James H. King of Earle testified Thursday that a march by about 300 Negroes on the City Hall the night of Sept. 10 was stopped by 15 or 20 armed white men, none of them law enforcement officers.

King said the men blocked the path of the marchers about 150 feet from City Hall. He said their appearance was a surprise.

The mayor said gunfire began and that the marchers scattered. He said he couldn't tell who was firing the shots.

Several persons were reportedly injured that night, although only one was struck by a bullet.

King testified in federal District Court during a hearing on motion by a group of Negroes who are asking for a temporary restraining order to prevent city officials from interfering with peaceful protests. The Negroes also want the judge to order an end to alleged discriminatory practices in the Earle schools.

King denied an accusation by Rev. W. Ezra Greer, 47, a Negro leader of the civil rights movement at Earle, that he was beaten by a group of men that included law enforcement officers on the night of Sept. 10.

Greer said the incident occurred outside City Hall shortly after the march was broken up. He said he was "surrounded by state troopers and those little vigilantes and sheriffs or whatever you call them and county police."

He said his left arm was broken and that he received cuts on the left side of the head and bruises to his ribs.

Movie Stunt Backfires

DUBLIN (AP) — American actor Don Stroud and pilot Lynn Garrison swam to safety after a movie stunt plane hit an electric cable and went into the Liffey River.

Both were taken to a hospital after the accident Wednesday. Garrison was treated for head cuts.

Stroud, 28, and Garrison, 35, who was born in Los Angeles, were coming in for a landing after an aerial dogfight sequence for the movie "Von Richthofen and Brown" when a bird struck the windshield, sending their light craft out of control.

The enemy offer, presented in Paris Thursday by Viet Cong Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh, Saigon's Thieu-Ky government would be replaced and the United States would have to promise to get its troops out of South Vietnam by next June 30.

In return, the Viet Cong would refrain from attacking the withdrawing allied troops and would discuss future peace arrangements including release of prisoners.

U.S. authorities here and in Paris have agreed to scan the Binh proposal carefully for any possible new openings. But in general, they said, it appears to be a retreat of past offers.

Enemy Peace Plan Looks Familiar

By LEWIS GULICK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Viet Cong's "new" eight-point peace plan has a familiar and unacceptable look to Washington officials.

Under the enemy offer, presented in Paris Thursday by Viet Cong Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh, Saigon's Thieu-Ky government would be replaced and the United States would have to promise to get its troops out of South Vietnam by next June 30.

In return, the Viet Cong would refrain from attacking the withdrawing allied troops and would discuss future peace arrangements including release of prisoners.

The True Masterpiece of Construction Is Just a Human Body

By MARY ANITA LASETER Star Feature Writer

Now cars are coming out this month, and there seems to be something superior about every model, according to the manufacturer.

However, nothing equals a marvel of engineering excellence that has been around longer than anything else. It manufactures its own fuel from raw materials, does its own cleaning and repairing, and replaces worn out cells by the millions each day.

Sounds too good to be true? Well, it's for real, and to find it, all you have to do is look in the mirror.

The human body is truly a structural masterpiece. Ages before engineers of ancient Rome created domes for their buildings, the dome of the human skull already roofed the human head. And before there were arches for aqueducts and bridges built by Roman engineers, the body was equipped with an arched rib cage and foot arches that are tops in efficiency.

Pumping, filtering and circulation are body functions that mankind has been only fairly successful in duplicating for his purposes of existence.

Naturally, the heart is a pump that no human engineer has been able to duplicate perfectly. As for filters, nothing has ever surpassed the kidneys with approximately two million filter units, filter sheet, strainer and reabsorbing mechanism. With only two structures, each small enough to fit into the palm of your hand, the kidneys can filter 200 quarts of fluid daily.

Maybe one-way streets and roads are the solution to more efficiency in our traffic system. That is, if our body highway, the circulatory system, is an example. The blood can only go in one direction, and consider this. We have 100,000 miles of "roads" in our "system" and it only takes one minute for five quarts of blood to make a complete circuit of that system. Now that is efficiency!

Our eyes have been described as windows, and this is certainly reasonable when we think of our eyelashes as protective shades, our eye-brows as overhanging eaves, and our eyelids as shutters that close automatically.

The eye is also like a camera in that an object is transmitted through a convex lens, resulting in the transmitted object appearing upside down. In the body, though, the brain interprets things for us and makes the world right-side up.

All this miracle of construction doesn't always stay in perfect condition, of course. But even the wrong things that happen can often be explained in terms similar to events of our everyday living.

The most notable example this writer knows is having the disease, multiple sclerosis. Since it affects the nerves and our nervous system is like electrical wiring, we see the destruction of protective insulation (myelin sheath) on the wires (nerves) resulting in a "short circuit." We call the result MS.

Note: The major portion of information in the above paragraphs were obtained from the March 8, 1970 issue of "Awake!" Maybe that is significant. If we were all more alert or awake, we could quickly see the parallel of many human functions and their counterparts in creations of man.

Commission Approves List of Nominees

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Election Commission approved Thursday a list of nominees to serve as third members of county election commissions after the names of two persons were changed.

The list of nominees was offered by the six-man Democratic majority on the state commission.

Odell Pollard of Searcy, a commission member and state Republican chairman, protested the names of Bill Clifton as the third member of the Conway County committee and Lester Schlenker as the third member of the Cross County committee.

After a 15-minute caucus, the Democrats decided to substitute Johnny DeSalvo for Clifton and H. H. Beasley for Schlenker. The third members of the commission serve with the local Republican and Democratic chairmen.

The meeting was conducted in harmony in contrast to the 1968 meeting when controversy erupted over whether the Republican members of the commission or a commission majority got to appoint the third members but that the commission should choose persons who would represent the GOP.

The 1969 legislature changed the law to make the majority party the party holding the most constitutional offices, the Democrats currently. The five Democratic and two Republican constitutional office holders and the Democratic and GOP state chairmen make up the Election Commission.

Traffic Jam Brings Ties

CHICAGO (AP) — Because of a traffic jam, President Nixon has acquired eight new neckties.

He jumped out of his car when his motorcade was stalled in the Loop Thursday and walked a block to the Marshall Field & Co. store.

There he picked out seven four-inch cravats and one bow tie with price tags totaling around $70.

Rail Strike is Blocked For 60 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting "with great reluctance," the Nixon administration has blocked for 60 days a threatened nationwide rail strike.

President Nixon signed executive orders Friday barring a walkout by four unions against 160 rail lines and creating a five-member board to investigate the dispute.

Unless Congress enacts emergency legislation, the unions will be free to strike if no contract settlement is reached in the next 60 days.

The orders, signed under provisions of the Railway Labor Act, affect some 400,000 union members—about 70 per cent of the nation's railway work force.

Asst. Secretary of Labor William J. Usery, a top labor trouble-shooter, said at the White House he had hoped for a settlement negating the need for the executive orders.

It was "with great reluctance," he said, that the Labor Department recommended the President sign the orders. But he indicated only a few points of major disagreement remain to be resolved after weeks of government-sponsored talks.

Vote issues should be dealt with by the board, he said.

He said a five-member panel instead of the usual three-member board was formed "so that an equitable settlement may be reached at the earliest possible time." Its members are to be named later.

Under the 44-year-old rail labor law, the board will study the dispute and submit its recommendations within 30 days. Over the following 30 days, the unions and rail lines are to consider the recommendations during negotiations.

A strike had been called for Sept. 10, but government mediators won agreement from the union to delay for five days.

There were selective shutdowns in some areas Tuesday and Wednesday until a federal court order blocking any strikes took effect. U.S. Dist. Court Judge Howard Corcoran said Friday he would leave his order in effect until it expires Sept. 23.

Earlier this week, C. L. Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, claimed the industry negotiators remained adamant in offering only a one-year 7 per cent wage increase offer. The unions want a 40 per cent or higher increase over three years.

Besides the clerks, the unions involved are the United Transportation Union, the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union.

Survivor of Sea Disaster to Write Book

HONOLULU (AP) — Julian Ritter, rescued with another man and a girl after drifting seven weeks without food in his sailboat, says he is going to write a book about the near-fatal Pacific adventure.

But first he is going to sell the 45-foot vessel, the Galilee, found with its starving crew by the Navy ship Niagara on Monday 422 miles northwest of Honolulu.

"It's served its purpose and now I want very badly to sell it," Julian Ritter told newsmen Wednesday.

A Coast Guard cutter was expected to arrive in Pearl Harbor Thursday with the boat in tow.

Ritter, 61, and his two emaciated crew members told on arrival at Pearl Harbor how they stayed alive for 49 days, after their supplies ran out, by scraping algae from the hull and boiling it with nutmeg, cloves and cinnamon to make a broth.

They also devoured a large philodendron and an elephant ear plant in the ship's cabin and managed to catch six flying fish and two squid.

Humorist Moving to England

NEW YORK (AP) — Humorist S.J. Perelman, 66, best known for his sardonic commentary on the American scene, says he will move to London next month permanently.

Calling England "a far more rational society than our own," Perelman said, "Today, the news in this country is so filled with insanity and violence that the newspapers, from which I derive many of my ideas, have scant room for the sort of thing that turns me on."

He said Thursday he had sold the 91-acre farm in Bucks County, Pa., which he and his brother-in-law, the late Nathanael West, bought in 1932, and planned to move to London on Oct. 21.

Release of Federal Funds Sought

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Thursday the state hoped to obtain the immediate release of federal funds to hire additional civilian guards for the state prison.

The governor told a news conference the state had received approval for a $280,000 grant for long-range planning at the prison and additional free-world personnel, but that the money had not yet been freed.

Rockefeller said Correction Commissioner C. Robert Sarver was "negotiating" with the Dallas office of the Department of Labor for the release of the funds. He said the state would move "promptly" to hire more guards when the money becomes available, but that how many will be added to the staff will be up to Sarver.

The governor said he was "distressed" over a shooting Wednesday at Cummins Prison Farm in which a prisoner was seriously wounded by a trusty guard, sparking a one-day strike by inmates.

On another subject, Rockefeller said he was satisfied that members of the State Police handled themselves well in the racial disturbance the night of Sept. 10 at Earle. Dr. Jerry Jewell, state NAACP president, had said failure by the State Police to act properly was one reason he had asked the governor to send National Guardsmen into Earle. Rockefeller did not send in Guardsmen.

Rockefeller praised the State Police for doing "an extraordinary good job in restraint in these areas."

Peace Talks Stymied by Golda Meir

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir has inflicted a heavy blow on American hopes that the Middle East peace talks could be resumed in the near future.

Mrs. Meir told President Nixon there can be no peace talks until Egypt removes the missiles Israel claims were implanted along the Suez Canal in violation of a military standstill agreement.

Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers tried Friday but failed to persuade the 73-year-old Israeli leader that talks under United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring provide the only avenue to peace.

In principle, Mrs. Meir agreed. But, she asked, why should Israel negotiate a peace treaty with a country which violated a lesser cease-fire agreement virtually the same day it agreed to observe it?

President Nixon and Rogers are reported to have understood Mrs. Meir's argument although they would not agree with her conclusion.

American officials concede the standstill cease-fire violations could not have occurred without the knowledge and complicity of the Soviet Union. They say there is no quarrel with the harsh words the Israeli leader used at her Friday press conference when she accused Moscow and Cairo of bad faith and said "they both are culprits."

The Nixon administration consoled itself with the conclusion that because of the Jordan situation the question of resuming of political talks is hypothetical anyway.

The United States, however, would not take Mrs. Meir's "no" for an answer. Diplomatic prodding will continue on several fronts, officials said.

Moscow and Cairo will be urged anew to "rectify the violations", which has been interpreted as removal of their missiles deployed in the Suez Canal Zone contrary to provisions of the standstill-cessate-fire agreement, and new efforts will be made to persuade Mrs. Meir to end her boycott of the talks.

American and Israeli diplomatic observers agreed that despite the failure to smooth over differences, Mrs. Meir's day-long talks with the President and Rogers were useful because they restored confidence between the two countries.

U.S. officials reluctantly concede the safety of hostages held by Palestinian guerrillas and the chaotic Jordanian situation in which the throne of King Hussein, a pro-Western monarch, is at stake, have priority over the hoped-for resumption of the peace talks.

UN Will Ask Big Four for Guidance

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann is expected to urge more Big Four guidance on the Middle East in a speech set for delivery today at the 26th U.N. General Assembly.

Later, the assembly will consider a recommendation approved unanimously by its steering committee Thursday night that it debate the Middle East situation in urgent plenary meetings.

Advance indications were that Schumann would ask the other Big Four nations—the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union—to join France in giving U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring suggestions to pass along to the Arabs and Israelis on how to end the Middle East conflict.

Jarring began indirect peace talks Aug. 26 in New York with Egyptian, Jordanian and Israeli delegates. Israel withdrew from the negotiations on Sept. 10, charging that Egypt had violated an accompanying cease-fire agreement by striking an aircraft carrier.
